This week: "Did you know?"

For Fairhope, the name Ox Kitchen conjures images of tasty burgers and other delicious foods, but few know the special meaning hidden in the title! Their recent move to 365 Greeno Road is the next chapter in this exciting family story...

According to "ruralheritage.com" Ox refers to "a mature castrated male belonging to the domestic cattle family, or genus Bos, [trained to work and also used for meat]." The owner of Ox Kitchen, (coincidentally named Bo!) explains the name has a very different, even more fitting and heartfelt source:

Originally from Birmingham, Bo Hamilton went to Auburn. He met his wife, Molly, a labor and delivery nurse, and after adventures in upscale dining venues and cooking out west in Wyoming, the couple missed the south. Home for Molly was Oxford, Mississippi. Plans were already underway for the move to Oxford when the couple spent 5 days in Fairhope with their then-one-year-old child. The rest is history! Open in 2017, they now have 3 children and are expanding the menu.

In honor of Molly's hometown, the Ox Kitchen stands proud to serve casual, approachable, and affordable food. Bo's favorite part of growing: "Constantly trying to do better by listening to our employees, our fans, our reviews, always open to doing better - it's not just me, it's a total community experience!"
